

What is continuous learning?

Continuous learning is the process of learning new skills and knowledge on an on-going basis. This can come in many forms, from formal course taking to casual social learning. It involves self-initiative and taking on challenges. Continuous learning can also be within an organization, or it can be personal, such as in lifelong learning.

Why is continuous learning important for schools?

Staying competitive in today's global marketplace means that organizations need to be innovative, adaptive, and ever-changing. Achieving this depends on the skill and knowledge of the workforce. But how do you get this kind of workforce to begin with?

To innovate, to try a new process, or to do something new all requires learning.

People need to learn new knowledge or skills in order to see things in a new light and take that next leap. When organizations do not support a continual process of learning, innovation does not happen, processes remain unchanged, and nothing new is ever accomplished.

Employees and students need to be able to challenge themselves in order to obtain new knowledge, ideas, and skills. Learning needs to be on a flexible, on-demand and continual basis in order to contribute this kind of cutting-edge performance.

VIRTUAL CLASSES

A virtual classroom is an online learning environment that allows for live interaction between the tutor and the learners as they are participating in learning activities.

Our school NAVAYUGA RADIANCE SENIOR SECONDARY SCHOOL is conducting online live classes on application GOOGLE MEET. Where teachers are conducting live classes and students attend their classes by sitting at home.
